Says His Work Is His Play and Love Is Only Thing That

Counts.

Memories of all that David Belasco has done for the American theatre since he came to New York forty years ago, a hunger pinched boy who could afford no better lodgings than a shabby little garret in Fourteenth street, were brought back last night at the Biltmore, where nearly 1,000 of his friends in and out of the theatre met at dinner to honor him, his genius and his achievements. The dinner was airranged by the Schiety of Arts and Sciences. Notables from virtually every profession were present. Speakers referred to Mr. Belasco's idealism, the dignity of his taste, his kindilness, his compreherative kinowledge of stagecraft and his sureness of touch in dealing with human emotions. And at the end Mr. Belasco said:

"In all these years it stands to reason that I must have learned something, and it is this—it takes only a moment to say it: Love is the only thing that matters, the one thing that counts."

"On the Mexicon Heat age and head never been in find Mrs. Helen Gardner, who they thought lived in 145 West Forty-fifth street.

"We have written to her and sent her our pictures." The girls said, "and she with the bolt of get us on the stage."

Slater talked to the girls for a few moments and found that they were runaways and had never been in New York. The police also went to the West Forty-fifth street. "Another thing I have learned in my experience in New York has grown to be my creed: I believe that God made us to work. But I believe He made us to love our work so much that we might play at it, find real and profound pleasure in it, and so labor on until, tired out, we might sleep like little children at the end of each day.

"People say to me, the doctors and my friends: 'You work too hard.' I say 'No; I play a little hard, perhaps. My work is my play.' And it is such good sport that I love it more and more; and since nothing is wasted our love is the one real thing in the work we leave. The man who does not love his work, who finds no pleasure in it, who cannot toil at it till he drops, is a slave."

There is a charming Dutch dance as prelude by Myrtle Immel and Felicle Sorel: a Tschatkowsky "Concerto" on the Ampico, and "Snooky's Fresh Heir," a Chester comedy which gives humanity a chance to appreciate the comic art of monkeys.

During Christmas week the stock com-pany recently formed by the manage-ment of the Manhattan Opera House will revive "Little Red Riding Hood," "Cinderella" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Three performances will be given each day, "Little Red Riding Hood, will be the play today to morray and be the play to-day, to-morrow and Wednesday at the morning performances, which will start at 11 o'clock, Thursday, Friday and Saturday "Cinderella" will be presented at that hour, closing at 1:15. The afternoon performance will start at 2:40 P. M. and "Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be the afternoon and evening feature.

These plays have been selected because of their appropriateness and adaptability to the scenic facilities of the big stage the Manhattan affords. The company will remain at the Manhattan until January 23, and there will be a weekly change of bill. rerion to the Rinito.

"Footfalls," a William Fox production seen earlier at the Park Theatre, takes a new lease on life at the Capitol, with Tyrone Power doing some of the best listening seen on the screen, where too often the actors insist on talking as much as ever, even though inaudible.

Wallace Reid, co-starring with Miss Elsie Ferguson in "Peter Ibbetson," has been moved in this exquisite production from the Criterion to the Riaito, as well as appearing at the Rivoll, so he goes
